INTRODUCTION

Big words bring big brains, itsy-bitsy words bring ALL brains, as well as spiders down waterspouts.

We are here to serve the masses. With a goal in mind to create a unique, fun experience with a community that works together to build a—successful project, while at the same time offering base fundamentals that create upwards price movement and interest to both the serious investor and those that just like cats flying through space.

ECONCATICS

Let's not kid ourselves. Every token tries to find its niche. A fun gimmick that draws interest and eyes often are good for the extreme pump, while those late to the party can find themselves destroyed. Whether it being unrealistic burns, insane inflation due to unsustainable APYs, or the always reliable promises of 'soon' where nothing comes, these gimmicks are as old as Satoshi's grandmother.

Our focus? Fun! Giveaways! Creating opportunities. BUT....The backbone of it all is sustainable ecoNYANics which causes continuous upward price movement.

Don't get your panties in a bunch, that doesn't mean the token will never dip and/or consolidate. That's as unrealistic as getting one of those girls from your favorite GIF over at your house this weekend. What that does mean, though, is that code behind it all is meant to, in time, offer a process that causes the price to have no choice but to rise over time. This takes us...to the moon!

NYAN!

The Cat's Meow

The journey to 1000 moons often begins with a single meow. In this case, it began with the $NCAT team burning its team tokens manually. Not only does this just, inherently, reduce supply and increase demand, but it also becomes a valuable part of the rising floor later due to other functions of the token which we will explain briefly. An initial supply burn of 1.5% with more taking place over time makes the scarcity of $NCAT an active piece of upwards price movement.

Automatic Rewards

We all like presents. They are nice, they make us smile, and sometimes they even make us use the litter box. With $NCAT, each transaction has a 9% tax where 4% is automatically distributed among all $NCAT holders. These rewards being given out based on volume means the high APY dump that occurs so often in farms is non-existent. Holders earn and our encouraged to build the community. The more they do so, the more they earn. It's a win-win.

And the secret best part? All wallets that hold get these rewards. So the burn wallet with 1.5% of the supply in it? It gets rewards with each transaction as well, meaning each transaction causes more and more of a burn. Decreasing the supply, increasing the demand, and making some killer ecoNYANics.

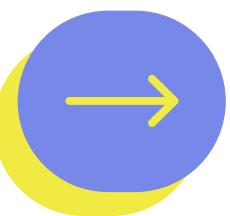

Transactional Liquidity Generator

As mentioned previously, there is a 9% tax on each transaction. 4% becomes delivered to the holders while the other 5% gets added to liquidity through the contract. This liquidity becomes locked away and inaccessible, once again raising the price floor each and every time a transaction is made. The higher liquidity means smaller dips, more stability, and with tokens being burnt into oblivion, much higher chances to ride that NYAN into the stratosphere.
